We are Glitch – a small, friendly Georgian web dev team working with music labels to promote new music through interactive digital experiences and games for fans.

We are looking for a senior front-end developer who writes clean, simple, and manageable code, and is passionate about building great websites, with equal focus on design and functionality.

We offer: interesting and varied projects, a fully remote position with occasional meetups in Tbilisi, health insurance, latest MacBook for you to work on, and a chance for you to contribute significantly to our projects by letting you focus on the code as much as possible.

We encourage you to check out our portfolio at <https://glitch.ge> to see the kind of projects you will be building!

Required tech skills:

- Next.js
- TypeScript
- Firebase (Firestore, Auth, Storage)
- Strong CSS skills

Good to have experience with some of the following:

- Testing
- HTML Canvas / P5.js
- Three.js
- Framer Motion
- MongoDB
- SCSS
- Spotify and Apple Music APIs

Personal qualities:

- Good at understanding project requirements
- Writes clear, readable code
- Understands the need to manage code complexity
- Pays attention to UI design details during implementation
- Can take decisions independently
- Tries to make ideas work or proposes alternative solutions
- Open to learning new technologies and improving skills as needed
- Responsible and reliable

Example daily tasks:

- Work with our project manager and team to scope out a new project
- Distribute tasks to junior developers and review their work
- Maintain past projects and make changes based on client feedback
- Repurpose old code in new projects
- And of course, write some fresh, good code!

If this sounds like a position for you, send us your CV and a short email about yourself and why this job appeals to you (just one or two paragraphs in Georgian or English):
